Time to rest

Angelic's traveling flower business became a mini success, and they were featured in small magazines and newspapers for their rare and unique approach to floral design. Years went by, and Angelic's business continued to thrive. They traveled to new countries and cities, learning about different floral traditions and cultures and incorporating them into their own work. Angelic realized that their true passion wasn't just about selling flowers - it was about bringing joy and beauty into people's lives through their art. And that's exactly what they did, one graceful arrangement at a time.

Once you reach 0 health, you will receive a message indicating you lose the game

After you checked the flowers you are selling. You will be roaming the streets selling the flowers you have in stock. You start with 5 patience (represented as hearts), if you lose all your patience you lose the game. If you reach 10 patience you win the game. Click the button to sell your flowers.

Sell Flower Bouquet

Your customer, who is a/an gift giver was repulsed by your hastily arranged bouquet and left immediately.

After you sell flowers 3 times. You can choose to go home and rest.

Time to rest

Angelic was often unreliable, frequently showing up late to events or not delivering orders on time. Customers quickly lost faith in Angelic's business, and negative reviews began to pile up. Angelic's business eventually failed due to their poor reputation.

While not coded in the tool, you can choose the third option in the rule book “Negotiate with another florist (+1 flower that they have that you don’t have if you have more hearts)” manually when you choose to rest home. The program will keep track of all the flowers you can sell.
